Dear Madam:

I appreciate the amount of work individuals have put into investigating the Superfund site located at the Mathiessen and Hegler Zinc Company Site. I find the resulting report to be a political hot potato. It is at this point where I lose my respect for the report writers. All the dots on the maps should be labeled with what was found and how much. Failing to do that leaves me no choice but to accuse you of political collusion.

The money interests in this case have their say just like the rest of us. They remind me of the Mayor in "Jaws". Except here the effort to silence the facts can and will result in illness and possibly deaths of many people.

The effort to keep the industrial socialism intact will cost lives. Mathiessen/Hegler ran their company poisoning the area, took their profits and closed shop. Now the people of LaSalle, Illinois and the USA at large will pay the true cost of Industrial pollution.

You have much of the information on hand. This information should be divulged immediately.
